The Civil Justice Reform ("CJR") in Hong Kong and Practice Direction 31 ("PD31") of the Judiciary (2 January 2010) encourages litigants to explore mediation to resolve their differences. Mediation has since been used to a much greater extent in Hong Kong. The international trend to use Mediation to resolve disputes is catching on fast in Hong Kong to becoming "mainstream". Anyone who is involved in dispute resolution should understand what Mediation is all about or be left behind.

This is an intensive 5 day Mediation Training Course designed by ADRIIL to provide the necessary theory and skills to business professionals who are interested in understanding Negotiation and Mediation and / or wish to be Accredited as a Mediator. This course is offered in collaboration with the Association of International Accountants.

Faculty

Mr. Norris Yang, Previous guest faculty have included Professor Nadja Alexander, Mr. Ian Hanger AM, QC, Mr. Michael Beckett, Dr. James Chiu, Ms. Jacqueline Mak and Mr. Simon Yeung.

ADRIIL also assists companies and governments to train their staff on ADR processes and techniques. The organisation has successfully organized Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre ("HKIAC") Accredited Mediation Courses in Hong Kong and has trained over 1,000 senior civil servants in Hong Kong on dispute resolution. ADRIIL has been contracted by the Government of Macau (since 2009) to train more than 150 senior civil servants, lawyers, judges and business leaders as mediators. ADRIIL has been voted as "International Dispute Resolution Firm of the Year - Mediation, Arbitration and ADR" (Intercontinental Finance Legal Excellence Awards 2011).

The Course

Completion of this course satisfies the course requirements (Stage I) of the HKIAC and the International Negotiation Mediation Institute ("NMI") to become an Accredited Mediator (after completion of Stage II and III of the requirements) of HKIAC and NMI.

The course leaders will be leading international mediation trainers and consultants with extensive mediation experience to bring more depth and insight to the participants. The course applies interactive learning concepts introducing theory interlaced with games, videos, exercises and role plays to help the participants develop their techniques and skills. ADRIIL aims to create excellence and enrollment is strictly limited to enhance better group interaction. The courses offered by ADRIIL have received consistently excellent ratings by the participants. Our participants are generally seasoned professionals of their field.

The Mediation Process is examined and the soft skills and techniques of a successful mediator are discussed and explored with exercises and role plays. The course introduces concepts of Conflict and the various methods of resolving disputes (ADR Spectrum). Negotiation concepts are explored and Principled Interest-Based Negotiation is introduced.
